1. Preamble

It is very rightly said "Sports serve society by providing vivid examples of excellence." by George Frederick Will, an American libertarian-conservative political commentator, to contribute to the education of youth through sport in a spirit of better understanding, friendship, solidarity, and respect for the environment, contributing thereby to the development of a harmonious and more peaceful world.

Sports, Recreation and Wellness are interconnected and complementary to each other. They develop the attributes of skill in particular sports, team-spirit, competitiveness, discipline, leadership, energy, health, happiness and much more.

The students, are energetic, aware and amenable to mobilization. Modern sports facilities and sports complexes are required in cities and Educational Institutions so that students practice sport to remain healthy. Students and Parents are looking beyond academics while selecting an Educational Institution for their wards because regular sports activities are essential for physical, mental, psychological and social development of the students. Sports also promote friendship and fair play and teach teamwork, discipline, respect, and the coping skills necessary to ensure that students develop into caring Individuals. They help to prepare young people to meet the challenges they will face to take leadership roles within their community.

Sports are considered as one of the parameters to assess the development of any nation. The organization of international mega events like Olympics, Commonwealth Games etc are the testimony for the same. The attitude and approach of the people towards sports, availabilities of the required infrastructure and amenities determine the level of the skill in sports which is eventually contributes in the status of the nation at large.

In view of the importance of sports in the life of an individual as mentioned above, it is imperative for Symbiosis to provide requisite sporting opportunities and facilities, strengthen its sports network to provide the necessary infrastructure, equipment, material, manpower and have a strategic vision plan to develop a sports culture at Symbiosis. Symbiosis is the leading health promoting university in India and considers sports as an essential part in overall development of the student. The University Sports Board, through the Department of Sports Recreation and Wellness, aims at embracing new initiatives which will enable the University to promote sports and excellent opportunities to emerging and promising sportspersons.

The Department of Sports, Recreation & Wellness (DSRW) places emphasis on promoting Physical Literacy among all stakeholders at the University. The focus is to improve Quality of Life through physical activity. The DSRW provides access to sporting facilities and also some unique physical activity programs to encourage participation in sports, recreation and leisure. Physical Fitness, its assessment,
